Administrative History

Since France was a contributor to UNRRA rather than a receiving country, there was no need for a typical mission office to carry on supply and welfare work. UNRRA nevertheless carried on many activities in France, and several different offices existed. Most of the remaining records of all of them are grouped here.

The France Mission was established late in 1944, primarily to maintain liaison with the French Government and with SHAEF. It soon assumed responsibility also for the recruitment of personnel for displaced persons operations in Germany. When, in the spring of 1945, the Mobilization and Training Centre at Granville (later Haaren) began sending large numbers of newly recruited UNRRA workers through Paris into Germany and other European countries, it became the Mission's responsibility to make their travel arrangements and to billet and feed them in Paris. Another important duty was acquired in March 1946, when Surplus Procurement Operations, hitherto responsible directly to Headquarters, was placed under the administrative control of the Mission. The France Mission was formally closed on 28 February 1947.

The Administrative Base, Granville, France was established in February 1945 for the purpose of receiving, equipping, training, and sending onward the staff that was rapidly being recruited for displaced persons work in Germany, Austria, and, to a lesser extent, other European countries. The base was moved in September 1945 to Holland and was renamed the Mobilization and Training Centre, Haaren, Holland. At the end of January 1946, its work accomplished, the centre was liquidated, a few of its activities being taken over by Displaced Persons Operations Headquarters in Germany.

The Department of Surplus Property (SURPROP) originated as the Surplus Procurement Office, Paris, in August 1945. With primary responsibility for acquiring surplus property (mostly from the U.S. Army) and moving it to receiving countries, the office operated under the direction of Washington headquarters until 15 March 1946, when it became administratively a department of the France Mission. Upon the liquidation of the Mission a year later, the Records and Control Division and the Accounts Division of SURPROP became part of the Mission Closure Office.

Paris was the headquarters of several different closure and liquidation offices, whose functions, organizational status, and records were somewhat confused even at the time.

The first of these, the France Mission Closure Office, succeeded the France Mission on 1 March 1947 including the remaining units of SURPROP, it was responsible operationally to the European Regional Office and administratively to Displaced Persons Central Headquarters, Paris. It appears to have been superseded at the end of June 1947 by the Displaced Persons Central Headquarters in Europe and the Middle East was set up in Paris on 15 February 1947 to succeed the former Central Headquarters at Arolsen, Germany, and to combine the control of all displaced persons work in the specified areas during the run-down period when preparations were being made for transfer of these responsibilities to the new International Refugee Organization. The new Paris office also took charge of the home accounting functions of the recently closed Missions in Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, and France. It was formally closed on 30 June 1947, when the displaced persons work was taken over by the new PCIRO.

A Closure Staff-Paris was set up on 1 July 1947 to continue those liquidation responsibilities remaining to UNRRA. On 11 July the office was renamed UNRRA Closure, Paris and Germany, and its functions were outlined. Its subordinate offices consisted of the Chief of the Closure Staff-Paris, the Surplus Disposals Officer, the Director of SURPROP, Paris and the Closure Officers of the three zones of Germany. During the ensuing months these offices were rapidly disbanded as they completed their work, and the last of them, the Surplus Disposals Office, closed on 6 February 1948.

When the Preparatory Commission of the International Refugee Organization succeeded UNRRA on 1 July 1947 a Field Liaison Centre, PCIRO, was set up in Paris, and many UNRRA workers were transferred to it. It was engaged principally in facilitating the transfer of displaced persons work to the new PCIRO organization, whose headquarters was in Geneva. The Paris office was formally closed on 15 August 1947 and finally liquidated about the middle of September, 1947.

Scope and Content

The records described in the attached list are only a small proportion of the voluminous files that were accumulated in the several Paris offices. Many of them - those dealing with routine matters and the details of transactions, such as travel arrangements, messing lists, shipping receipts, and local personnel records - have been destroyed, either by UNRRA or subsequently by the United Nations. Operating files and some administrative materials pertaining to relief services and displaced persons work were turned over to PCIRO and are presumably now to be found among the IRQ records in the Archives Nationales, Paris. Other displaced persons files, which had been in Paris only briefly while the DP Central Headquarters was there, are now among the records of the Germany Mission.
